

IF GERMANS CHOOSE TO DEFEND ROME, ALLIES WILL BE FORCED TO USE FORCE TO "EJECT THEM," SAYS GEN. WILSON

Allies Will Use Military Measures, Says Gen'l Sir Henry Maitland — American Forces Batter Their Way Through Enemy "Defense in Depth."

NAPLES, June 3.—(INS)—If the Germans choose to defend Rome, the Allies will be forced to use force to "eject them," Gen. Sir Henry Maitland Wilson declared today in an official statement.

"If the Germans choose to defend Rome, the Allies will be obliged to take military measures to eject them," General Wilson said.

The German army will be ejected from Rome by "military measures," Gen. Sir Henry Maitland Wilson declared today, if the Nazi high command chooses to defend the city.

With Fifth Army spearheads already within 13 miles of Rome, the Supreme Allied Commander in the Mediterranean theater reaffirmed that every effort would be made by the Allies to safeguard both the civilian population and cultural works of the Eternal City.

NAPLES, June 3.—(INS)—American forces battered their way through enemy "defenses in depth" in their two-pronged drive on Rome today, occupying Monte Castellaccio and enlarging their penetration north of Velletri.

The Yanks, who had pushed spearheads to within 13 miles of Rome after their brilliant feat of capturing Velletri and Vianimonte, were encountering Nazi defenses of "considerable depth."

"Although Velletri and Vianimonte now have been taken by the Fifth Army after heavy fighting," Gen. Sir Henry Maitland Wilson's headquarters announced, "the enemy's defensive positions in this sector have not yet been broken."

Flies Length of the Pacific in 44 Hours

NEWTOWN, June 3.—A prominent Bucks Countyman, Frazier Hunt, has returned to his Eagle Road home from Australia.

Mr. Hunt flew the length of the Pacific in 44 hours.

During the five months that Mr. Hunt has been in the South Pacific war zone, he saw the conquest of several "Jap" held islands in northern New Guinea and the great military bases in Australia.

In New Guinea Mr. Hunt met Naval Lt. (s.g.) John S. Wright, of Newtown, a member of the "Seabees," who has made an excellent record in construction of naval installations.

"My Fiddle" Is Subject Before A Rotary Club

DOYLESTOWN, June 3.—Dr. Charles Hoff, who, in addition to devoting much time to his hospital in Northampton, has made an intensive study of musical instruments, especially violins and violas, was the guest speaker at the meeting of the Rotary Club here, this week. Introduced by Dr. George T. Hayman, Dr. Hoff, who is sometimes known as the musical surgeon, gave a very interesting talk, the subject of which was "My Fiddle."

The guest speaker has devoted much time and effort and spent large sums in the collection of old violins and violas, and today is the owner of seven of these instruments, of which four are outstanding.

One of the violins Dr. Hoff displayed, and which was used later in the evening during the presentation of a brief program, is what is known as the "Lafont Strad," and was made by Antonius Stradivarius at Cremona, Italy, in 1699.

This violin was named after Charles Philippe Lafont, a Frenchman, who was solo violinist for the Emperor of Russia, in 1808, and who played first violin for Louis XVIII in 1815. Lafont played this instrument in a competitive concert with his friend, Paganini, and was so gratified with his success that he used it during his lifetime, and had his name inscribed on it.

Another old instrument Dr. Hoff brought with him and which also was used during the program was a viola made by Jacobus Stainer in 1652.

INDUCTED INTO THE NAVY

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT
(Distributed by McNaught Syndicate, Inc.)

Grave Issue

Washington, June 1. FROM THE confusion of the preliminary Presidential campaign there is now emerging an issue of such vital importance that it should be made clear to every voter. Particularly, it should be understood by those in the armed services, here and abroad, who will cast their ballots by mail.

BUT, IT IS unlikely this can be done, as the politicians in one party are interested in not having it made clear and those in the other apparently lack the courage to do so. However, if some way is not found to bring the facts home to the nation as a whole, it may wake up next year to find a form of government riveted upon it wholly foreign to the American idea and entirely unpalatable to the American taste. The essence of this issue is whether the people of the United States are ready to have the country run by the radical bosses of one labor faction—to wit, the CIO. That is really the question.

THIS IS no partisan exaggeration. It is a simple statement of fact, which neither the war nor the Administration propagandists should be allowed to obscure. Evidence that CIO domination of the next administration is bound up in the success of the Roosevelt fourth-term attempt is sufficient to convince almost any detached observer. As a matter of fact, few would deny that the CIO has highly favored this Administration in the past eight years. The point is that under existing conditions another Roosevelt re-election will enhance its power far beyond any previous conception—will, in fact, place it in a controlling position.

SPRING HAS COME TO "PENNSBURY"

PENNS MANOR, June 2.—Spring has come to "Pennsbury!"

And with the new surge of life in trees, shrubs and vines, comes renewed interest in the restored home of William Penn on the banks of the Delaware—for the year 1944 brings to the visitor a much clearer idea of how the country seat in the new world, begun for the founder and first governor of Pennsylvania in 1683, appeared to the person fortunate enough to be a guest there nearly 100 years before the Revolution.

Work of re-creation was begun in 1938, and now, six years later, the results of painstaking effort, years of research, and laborious tasks, some done over and over for the sake of perfection, are beginning to show.

Where six or seven years ago there was but a dilapidated farmhouse and some acres given over to a few crops, there stands today a manor house patterned in every possible detail like that which William Penn with such enthusiasm planned and had built.

And with the outcropping of leaves this spring the visitor readily recognizes the apricot, apple, the plum and the quince tree; the various herbs in the herb garden; and views with longing eye the sweet red strawberry berries. Asparagus, row after row now in its second year, was not cut this spring, but permitted to go to seed so that it might properly propagate in years to come.

Just as in Penn's time there is all manner of berry, flower and vegetable that grows readily in this section, Penn had described "Pennsbury" in his day as having fine tillable soil—and so it is today. Vegetable and flower plants are grown in sash beds, then set out at the proper time.

The 1944 visitor to "Pennsbury" finds things greatly changed in even one and two years, so nicely are the trees and shrubs progressing. Approaching the manor house over gravelled drives, between neatly-clipped plots of grass lined with a variety of young trees—the various types of fences, some painted white, and the neat little bake, brew, and smoke houses, are seen attractively grouped about the sturdy manor house which overlooks the river.

Although several of the rooms, including the "best parlor," the "lesser parlor," the dining room and the nursery are completely or partially furnished, the visitor's attention is naturally directed in the spring to the lawns and gardens.

A hemlock hedge, trimmed to a height of approximately 2½ feet, surrounds one grass plot at the rear of the property which the visitor first approaches. Large holly trees occupy the center section of the green.

The walks of one garden plot are bordered with gooseberry bushes, while nearby are raspberries and currants, strawberries, etc. Branches of dwarf types of Baldwin apple trees are trained up one of the fences. The herb garden is a delight to any home-maker with its thyme, chives, feverfew, sage, sweet lavender, sweet woodruff, rue and many others. Laid out in attractive patterns some of the small beds have borders of up-ended bricks.

A riot of color greets the eye in the flower garden to the front of the house, overlooking the river. Columbine in every imaginable shade, calendulas, myrtle, wood violets, white violets, pinks, snapdragons, iris, peonies, Johnny-jump-ups, pansies, yellow day lilies—all have their place. At intervals appear white benches, and here and there are boxwood bushes. A Philadelphia fence, painted white, surrounds the garden.

CPL. E. CONNOLLY IS A PRISONER OF WAR

Anxiety of 4 Months Relieved for Relatives; Was Reported Missing

IS IN "GOOD HEALTH"

Anxiety of four months was given relief for Bartley Connolly, 387 Pond street, on Thursday when he received word that his son, Cpl. Edmund Connolly, of the U. S. Rangers, who had been missing in action since January 30th, is a prisoner of war.

Cpl. Connolly, aged 20, had been in the army but eight months, when he was taken a prisoner by the Germans. He was one of those in the ill-fated group of about 900 who failed to return following an attack near Cisterna, Italy. Only 26 returned to their base. The remainder were trapped and either taken prisoners or killed.

Mr. Connolly's letters to his son were returned to him one by one, and on March 12th he received a telegram from the War Department, stating that Edmund was missing in action. From then until Thursday he knew nothing of the whereabouts of the young man, or if he was still alive. Then the Prisoner of War Division in Washington, D. C., forwarded Mr. Connolly a letter from his son.

The young man, who is a member of the Third Regiment of Rangers, advised his father that he is in the best of health.

Cpl. Connolly's letter follows:

"Feb. 26, 1944.

"Dear Dad:

"I guess this letter will be a surprise. It's just a few lines to let you know I'm alive and in the best of health. I'm getting three good meals a day besides a box from the Red Cross each week. I don't have to do any work, so all I do is eat and sleep. We have church here just like in the army.

HOME FROM ALASKA

Cpl. Tech. Edward H. Bergmann

Son of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Bergmann, Sr., Edgely, who is stationed with the U. S. Army along the Alaska Highway, is now at home on his first furlough. He is spending 20 days with parents, relatives and friends.

Cpl. Bergmann, who has been in the Army for 1½ years, found quite a change in temperature when he arrived in the States. He says that where he has been stationed the temperature during the winter went as low as 72 degrees below zero. Cpl. Bergmann found several changes in his home town. His parents had moved, and his brother is now in the U. S. Navy.

When Cpl. Bergmann's furlough terminates he will return to White Horse, Yukon Territory.

New Hope Residents Consider What Future Years Will Bring

M A N Y PARTICIPATE

NEW HOPE, June 3.—Seventy-five persons met in the high school this week to take part in a panel discussion on community needs and how to meet them through group planning and cooperation. The value of this type of gathering was felt to be so definite that those present voted enthusiastically for a permanent Community Council and frequent Town Meetings of this type.

The meeting was arranged by the League of Women Voters as a part of their current poll on "Community Planning—Now!" Mrs. Charles B. Gary, of New Hope, chairman of the league, presided.

Russell V. Black, well-known authority on city planning, and a member of the local school board, was the first speaker on the panel. Mr. Black distinguished between long-range economic and social planning for the welfare of the people, which must stem from our national and state governments, and the more immediate and physical planning that can be done only by communities.

He said that New Hope and the surrounding areas should be able to make the adjustment from war to peace more easily than communities where there has been a boom in industry and population. But, he said, we should begin to take up the slack immediately and start working together—not just to alleviate present problems, but toward assuring a better life for the entire community.

American Heavy Bombers Rock German Defenses

London.—American heavy bombers and fighters rocked German anti-invasion defenses in the Pas De Calais and Boulogne areas of France twice today in smashing daylight onslaughts which followed heavy RAF night blows at railroad and military installations in that occupied land. Fortresses and Liberators, escorted by fighters, hammered at what were described officially as "military targets" in both sectors of the coast early in the day. A few hours later an identical force struck the same areas again.

The RAF night forays were directed against northern France and the Paris area.

British Planes Attack 3 German Merchantmen

Aboard a British Aircraft Carrier in Northern Waters—Planes from a British naval task force gliding through Norwegian coastal waters dive bombed and strafed a convoy of three German merchantmen aggregating 20,000 tons, leaving all smoking and burning furiously, it was headed today.

The aerial strike was made against a convoy protected by four bank ships heading down the Stadlandet Peninsula midway between Trondheim and Bergen and presumably laden with a cargo of ores and fish oils from Narvik.

8-YEAR-OLD BOY DIES OF INJURIES SUFFERED WHEN HE RAN INTO SCHOOL BUS' PATH; VICTM IS RUSSELL GIRTON

Little School-Mates Witness the Tragedy at Cornwells Heights School—Death Occurs at Harriman Hospital Yesterday Afternoon — Funeral on Tuesday

Internal injuries suffered by a small boy as his school-mates stood by helpless when the child is said to have run into the path of a school bus, proved fatal yesterday afternoon for Russell Girton, Jr., 8, Bensalem Township.

The child, son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Girton, Washington Lane, Bensalem, was severely and painfully injured about the abdomen when it is believed his body became wedged between the wheel and either the bumper or fender of the bus late Thursday afternoon. Taken to the Harriman Hospital by a high school student, the lad died yesterday.

Dedicate Plaque; Honors Rohm & Haas Servicemen

A plaque honoring the 535 young men from Rohm & Haas Company now in the service of their country was dedicated yesterday afternoon at ceremonies held at the plant. The plaque which was placed temporarily on an easel, will be erected between the main office and the gate house. It is made entirely of Plexiglas.

Guests at the ceremony were relatives of the servicemen from Rohm and Haas, and employees of the firm.

The program included: Invocation, the Rev. George E. Boswell, rector of St. James' P. E. Church; introductory remarks, E. Leslie Helwig, vice president of the firm; dedicatory address, Lt. Col. Don A. Starny, U. S. Army; unveiling of the plaque by Miss "Betty" Somers and William Mutch; taps sounded by Charles Brodie; benediction, the Rev. Fr. E. Paul Baird, of St. Mark's R. C. parish. Selections by the Rohm & Haas Co. band included "America" and the national anthem.

The two who unveiled the plaque are relatives of the two young men from the firm who have lost their lives in the service. Miss Somers' father and Mr. Mutch's son have gold stars beside their names.

FIGURES INDICATE MUCH WASTE PAPER HERE

U. S. Dept. of Commerce Claims 160,797 Pounds Are In Bristol

S O M E IN SUBURBS

There are 160,797 pounds of waste paper in Bristol households based on the average of 46.1 pounds per family as figured by the U. S. Department of Commerce. This was announced today by the Department which said the figures were obtained by an inventory survey of the waste paper lying idle in basements and attics in American households.

This study indicates that in April there were 850,000 tons of waste paper uncollected in this country. In Bristol households, based on the average of 46.1 pounds per family, the average household has 17.6 pounds of newspapers, 20.5 pounds of magazines, 5.2 pounds of brown kraft, and 2.8 pounds of waste basket paper on hand.

Surrounding farms have approximately 57.5 pounds of waste paper per family. This proves that although waste paper is number one critical war material there is plenty.

Just how the tragedy occurred is not known. School children, who were waiting with Russell to board the bus endeavored to tell authorities just what had taken place, some claiming the wheels passed over the youngster, while others incoherently stated they thought the small body was tossed about by the wheel. Authorities are of the opinion that the boy's body was wedged between the wheel and bumper.

Russell leaves in addition to his parents a younger sister and two younger brothers, Harriet, Palmer and Patrick Girton.

The version of the case as given by the small pupils who waited outside the Bensalem Township high school building to ride to their homes, is that Russell had been standing with the group as the bus turned from Bristol Pike into School Lane, which runs alongside the high school building. The Girton lad is said to have quickly darted from the group into the path of the bus.

Pennsylvania State Police at South Laughorne barracks were notified, and C. A. Jones was assigned to the investigation. The driver of the bus, Joseph Reedman, Bensalem Township, is held to await action by the coroner's jury. Bucks County coroner J. Alfreid Continued on Page Four

Choir Fetes 3 Members At Dinner Party Here

Three young women and a young man were honored last evening by members of the Bristol Presbyterian Church choir at a dinner served at Bowen's Restaurant.

The members of the choir feted on this occasion are the Misses Patricia Henry, "Betty" Lynch and Olive Johnson, who graduate this spring from high school; and Donn Murduck, who will soon enter the armed forces.

Mr. Murduck is the eighth member of this choir to enter the service, and on behalf of the choir Mrs. Marburg D. Weagley, chorister, presented him with a sterling silver identification bracelet.

The menu was as follows: Fruit cup, creamed chicken in pattie shells, parsley new potatoes, asparagus, cole slaw, hot rolls, ice cream, iced tea and coffee.

A program of games was enjoyed. Others attending: The Misses Jean and Harriet Stetson, Blanche Savage, Marian Smith, Virginia Wyatt; Mrs. Clarence Bartholomew, Mrs. Ada Sands, the Rev. and Mrs. James R. Galley, Mrs. Charles I. Bowen, John Woolson, John Bowen, Mrs. Scott Wetherill and Mrs. Charles T. Selmer.

WOMEN WORKING

The Census Bureau at Washington reports that women are making up more than half the wartime decrease in the male labor force. The number of working women increased 300,000 in April, mostly in agricultural employment, to bring their total to 17,180,000. In the last year the number of men in the nation's labor force has dropped approximately 1,110,000, while the number of working women increased 600,000.

A total of 17,180,000 women engaged in work is impressive. While it represents only a comparatively small part of the female population between the ages of 16 and 50, allowance must be made for the great number of women in the various branches of war service as well as for the many women working as housewives and the many circumstantially unavailable for regular work. It may also be considered that many women are engaged in a variety of war activities which they would not be free to undertake if they had full-time jobs.

But the war services still are calling for women volunteers and the various agencies of the government employment service continue their efforts to get unemployed women to take jobs in the emergency. The needs of a nation at war have caused a great social upheaval. It is no longer a man's world but a woman's world.

RAPID MAPPING

It will be a surprise to many persons that after 167 years of national existence only 47 per cent of the United States has been adequately mapped and that the government is now comprehensively plotting the entire country at speeds three to five times greater than was possible before the war. This is due, it is said, to the development of aerial photography.

Ten states, the District of Columbia and Hawaii alone are considered to be completely mapped in the sense that official maps of these divisions show the actual shape and elevation of land surfaces, streams and drainage, and the location and extent of cities, towns and roads.

The ten states are Connecticut, Delaware, Maryland, Massachusetts, New York, New Hampshire, New Jersey, Rhode Island, West Virginia and Ohio. Even in Virginia, where George Washington began surveying in Colonial days, mapping has not been finished.

Now military necessity is hurrying the job. Of 228 large areas mapped during the last 12 months, 166 were in the vicinity of strategic military locations. Known as photogrammetric mapping, the method brings the terrain into the laboratories where mechanical plotting devices draw the contours in.

Hitler boasts of a bomb which freezes everything in its vicinity. Perhaps he'll decide to take one with him when he leaves this formerly mundane sphere.

A Model is Murdered — BABS LEE

CHAPTER THIRTY-FOUR

Roger Flagg was sitting up in bed when Argus was ushered into his room in the hospital. Aside from looking a little pale, the model agent appeared none the worse for his "accident." A young nurse with blonde hair and a piquant face, plumped Flagg's pillows behind his back.

"You can see him for a few minutes," she said. "Then he must rest." She left the room.

"Well," smiled Argus, "I get shot and what happens? Nothing. But look at you. Pretty nurse and everything."

Flagg grinned. "With all due respect to my lovely nurse, I'd still rather be up and around. The model agent promised to let me go home in the morning, provided I stay quiet. I read in the morning paper about your being shot. How did it happen?"

Argus reached in his pocket for a cigarette. "Mind if I smoke?" he asked.

"Go ahead," declared Flagg. Argus offered one to the model agent and then recalled that he didn't smoke.

"I guess some one figured it was the wrong season," the detective said, lighting his cigarette. "I don't know who shot me. But I've got a hunch. How about you though? What happened to you?"

"Well," answered Flagg slowly, "Pierre called me earlier in the evening and asked if I'd meet him at his studio around nine. He didn't say what he wanted but I gathered from the way he spoke, it had something to do with Syria."

"Ellen was to have posed for him at nine," said Argus. "Seems strange that he should make two appointments for the same hour."

"I didn't know that," asserted Flagg. "But then I thought the whole thing rather odd. Sturgis and I have never been very good friends. But I was planning to have dinner in the neighborhood, so I decided to run up afterwards and see what it was all about."

"Don't let it get to be a habit," grinned Argus. "Remember when Cynthia Lane wanted to see you, you ran into trouble, too."

"It is strange at that," Flagg's eyes dilated. "Do you suppose some one is trying to put me on the spot?" Flagg's brow contracted. "You know, Argus, I'm almost surprised something of this sort hasn't happened before now."

"Why is that?"

"I guess you'd have to hold down my job for a while to understand. I get some of the craziest letters and phone calls from jealous lovers or suspicious husbands. The guy's always positive his heart's desire has embarked on a life of sin when she takes up modelling—whereas over ninety per cent of the girls are grand youngsters like Ellen, and lead perfectly normal, everyday lives."

"Now that you mention it," Argus said, "I suppose I've been a little on the jealous side myself. I can understand how some of these out-of-town swains would fear the worst of their inamoratas—posturing around the studios and that sort of thing."

Flagg nodded. "Most of 'em have seen too many movies or read books about casting directors who make passes at the applicants. One big bruiser threatened to knock my block off when his girl began to make more money than he was making."

Argus laughed. "Well, it's a consolation to learn that you have some thorns amongst your roses, anyhow," he said. "I've envied you ever since I was up in your office. How'd you jolly get rid of the guy?"

"Simply by showing him the pictures of several hundred other beautiful models that were doing as well as his heart-throb."

"Safety in numbers, eh, Roger?" jibed Argus. "Go on with the other story. What happened at Pierre's studio?"

"The studio door was unlocked when I arrived and the keys were on the outside of the door. I took them inside. There was a light burning in the studio and I went on in. I got as far as the office and noticed that Sturgis' papers were all over his desk as though some one had been going through them. I walked over and dropped the keys on the desk, and was about to sit down and wait when I heard a sound behind me. I turned and saw a man in the doorway. He fired once and—that was all."

"And you don't know who it was?"

"I haven't any idea. The whole thing happened so quickly. I remember that I started toward him, but he got away. Then I must have become dizzy. I tried to hold myself up—"

"What do you think he was after?" Argus asked.

"I don't know. Something on the desk probably. I may have disturbed him at his work, or he may have been lying in wait for me to leave and when I didn't," Flagg frowned.

"Did you know that a handkerchief had been placed over your wound?"

"Yes. I have a hazy recollection of doing that, before I passed out." He ran his hand across his forehead.

"Do you think it might have been Sturgis who shot you?"

"Of course not. Why should he? We're not exactly pals, but he certainly would have no reason to murder me."

"Unless, of course, you thought that Pierre killed Syria and Cynthia Lane."

"No," said Flagg, "Frankly I don't think that."

"You know that Sturgis is missing?"

"Yes. Inspector Grange told me. He came up to question me earlier. He shivered. 'I'm just lucky my assailant's aim was so poor. It's only a flesh wound.'"

The nurse returned and told Argus his time was up. The detective said goodbye to Flagg. Downstairs in the lobby he phoned police headquarters. Inspector Grange was out but there was a message for Argus.

"The chief says you was right," said the desk sergeant, "and if you phoned, to tell you to go to 7103 Third Avenue, Apartment 2F. He just left here a minute ago himself." Argus thanked him and hung up.

Steele got out of a cab on the corner of Third Avenue and the 7100 block. Number 7103 was a somber looking building with an old iron fire-escape defacing its front. A sign hung over the door: "Apartments for Rent Furnished." Argus walked up to the entrance. He pushed the bell of 2F and was rewarded with a clicking sound. He opened the door. Facing him inside the dim, box-car hallway was a flight of sloping stairs. Argus walked up. The door to 2F was ajar. Grange poked his gray head out. "Hello, Steele! You sure got here fast."

"Yes," said Argus. "What's up? Is this Redbeard's hideout?" "Come in and see for yourself. My men and I just got here." He led the way into a fair-sized living room, with yellowed lace curtains at the windows. Argus's eyes travelled to the sagging blue couch that stood in one corner. It was partially hidden by the angle of a refectory table which was covered with a piece of dingy mulberry velvet. On the table was a telephone. To the right was an alcove. Here Argus stopped short.

"There's your Redbeard," Grange said dramatically.

Lying on the floor, staring up at the ceiling, was Pierre Sturgis. His face was a ghastly white. Blood had dried on the corner of his gray overcoat. The medical examiner was bending over him. At regular intervals the photographers' flashbulbs exploded. Argus stood there for several seconds, just staring. Grange watched him intently. "When did this happen?" Argus asked, finally.

"As near as we can place it, around ten last night," related Grange. "His watch shattered when he fell. It stopped at ten-ten. He was killed with the same caliber gun that got Flagg." Argus studied the position of the body.

There were obvious signs of a struggle. Powder burns showed around the wound. The medical examiner told him that Sturgis had been shot through the heart.

"We found this in his pocket," said Grange, producing the missing column from the Blade. Argus nodded thoughtfully.

"At last," he said under his breath. "When did you find Sturgis, Inspector?"

"About half an hour ago. I sort of took your tip about Redbeard having a hideout near Syria's apartment. I had a couple of men checking up in this neighborhood. One of them got to talking with the superintendent of this building and he described a man with a reddish beard as having rented this place late Thursday afternoon. Said he gave the name of Sloffsky."

TRENTON, June 3.—Because of the fine relief pitching of "Mike" deRisi, the Fleetwings team was able to tie the Eastern Aircraft nine in a fast game on Wetzel's field. Final score was 4-4.

DeRisi took up the mound burden with two outs in the second inning and four Aircraft runs already across. For the remainder of the game he shut out the airplane warriors and allowed them but three hits during this stretch.

Hitting the ball hard and taking advantage of an Aircraft error, the Wingers pushed over four runs in the final frame to tie the score. Two singles, a double by Bloom, a walk, and an error, did the four-run trick.

DeRisi and Bloom led the Fleetwings batters with two out of four while Tony Nitti had the same average for the Eastern Aircraft team.

ROHM & HAAS OUT TO BREAK LOSING STREAK

The Rohm & Haas team will attempt to break its losing streak of nine straight games tomorrow afternoon when it meets the Case Packers on the Maple Beach diamond. Game will begin at 3:15 o'clock.

Manager Ken Munroe will most likely use Jesse Crossdale on the mound in an effort to halt the losing streak which has caused the chemical mixers to drop into last place. Either Houser or Vanzant will be his battery mate.

Ken Hill or Case will twirl for the Packers who are in fifth place and should the Rohm & Haas team win, they may have an opportunity to climb from the cellar within the next week.

has been enlarged." The Yanks occupied Monte Castellaccio.

In the southeast, Canadian and British forces of the Eighth Army continued to drive north and west on the heels of some eight virtually-trapped German divisions. Spearheads already are approaching Alatri, some four and one-half miles northwest of captured Veroli. In the Lannio area, where the Germans counter-attacked most strongly, our forces took more than 1,000 prisoners in a 24-hour period ending yesterday. This swelled to 14,000 the number of Germans taken captive by the Fifth Army since inauguration of the offensive.

The Campolone sector was littered with enemy tanks, vehicles and a substantial amount of German equipment which had been destroyed or captured in good condition during recent operations.

German forces retreating northward from their mountain positions opposite the right sector of the Fifth Army are in imminent danger, having had the two most important exits closed to them.

Having seized Via Casilina, the Americans are moving east down this highway while other Fifth Army troops are at Sgurgola, astride the road leading to this highway.

The movement from Valmontone is threatening the German troops facing the French elements of the Fifth Army who are moving northward to Colle Ferro.

Cutting the road at Sgurgola should seriously hamper the enemy withdrawal from the hills south of Highway Six (Via Casilina).

The French, having occupied Montelanico, have pushed on toward the north.

A golden anniversary will be observed in St. Michael's Lutheran Church, Perkasie, on Sunday morning, when Irene Cressman, veteran organist of the church, is to be honored by members of the congregation at Sellersville.

Miss Cressman, now 82, played the organ, piano and pipe organ at St. Michael's Church for half a century. Until a mishap caused her to fracture a wrist recently, she had continued her duties. After that stiffness in her wrist made it impractical for Miss Cressman to resume playing, but her interest in local affairs continues unabated.

Commencement exercises were held Monday afternoon for the 8th grade pupils of the Washington Crossing school.

The exercises included: Invocation, Rev. F. Lewis Walley; address of welcome, Jean Anne Heritage; school chorus, selections; class history, Patricia Strange; piano solo, Marjorie Whitesell; boys' chorus; piano solo, Jean Anne Heritage; "Influence in Music, in the History of Our Country," Dorothy Hoagland; play, "Psalms of America," by the class; address, Rev. F. L. Walley; presentation of diplomas, by teacher, Mrs. Bertha Heritage. The graduates: Jean Anne Heritage, Dorothy Ruth Hoagland, Patricia Ann Strange, Marjorie O. Whitesell, Robert W. Spring Has Come er level and looking back, one has a good view of the brick wall which separates the flower garden from the lower grounds. Tulip poplars line the walk from the garden stairs to the great stairs at the water's edge. It was the "great stairs" that Penn frequently mentioned in his correspondence while in the old country.

The young Newton apple trees are sturdy in appearance and are the pride of those having the care of the orchard. These trees, grown from seeds of the tree under which Isaac Newton is reputed to have sat when he discovered the principle of gravity, are doing well. Penn frequently spoke of the vineyard, and this too has again become a reality. In fact the 40 acres of the restored property has blossomed once again.

There are many plans for the future, even though the only building done during the war period was that which fulfilled contracts let before Pearl Harbor. In post-war years an anti-erosion program will prevent soil from being gradually taken over by the Delaware's waters, it is hoped. There are yet to be built a tool house, wood shed, chicken house, and box-stall for the brood mare. The barn-yard too is incomplete.

Should Penn be able to return in spirit to this manor house which was his pride and joy, his eye would scan broad acres that are fast becoming what they were 260 years ago. He would find some of the pieces of furniture now housed there reminiscent of the period, including the items in the "best parlor" from the William Randolph Hearst collection. He would admire the splendid lines of the walnut chaise longue in the "lesser parlor," which piece came from an old castle in England. He would likewise be pleased with the walnut Bible stand in the hall which bears the date 1679. The dining-room and nursery furniture he would find to be that of his time. And he would no doubt spend some time before the reproduction of a map of the "Improved part of the Province of Pennsylvania in America, begun by William Penn, Proprietary and Governor thereof, 1681," which hangs in the great hall. He would admire the view from his bed-room window, with its southern and eastern exposures.

And what is more he would find hams and bacon suspended in the smokehouse, with a pile of hickory wood nearby for future "smokings." The founder of Pennsylvania would no doubt feel the rich smoothness of the two huge copper kettles in the big wash room, and would show keen interest in the fomenting tanks of wood in the brew house. He would be interested to know that archaeologists found evidence of hoops and remains of rotted wood on the site of the old manor house on which to base their dimensions for the beer tank which is inserted six feet in the floor of the brew room. Other large vats he would find nearby. His attention would also be called to the dryer in an adjoining room where a large oven heats air which makes its way through holes in the floor above to dry the hops and grains.

Reminders of those early days are also there in original pieces. For in the office, encased in glass, are roofing leads, glazed fireplace tile, roofing tile, window fasteners, flint-locks, and arrow heads excavated on the place. A portion of the original foundation is to be seen in the basement. This re-pointed brick section gives fine example of the manner in which brick was customarily laid in that early day, with the "head" and "stretcher" rows alternating.

To "Pennsbury," where visitors were never lacking in Penn's day, there come from many states today men and women from all walks of life. And with the conclusion of the global conflict and the ending of gasoline rationing, it is predicted that guests by the thousands will make their way thither—not by barge nor by carriage as in the late 17th century—but by the motor car which Penn never knew.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

ception in 1935 Mr. Roosevelt and the CIO have consistently operated as a political unit. From the sit-down strikes of his first Administration on up to the recent national service proposal which, though he recommended it on the insistence of his military heads, he has allowed to languish following CIO opposition, there has been no public question upon which they have been divided. The CIO supports the President on every domestic policy; the President supports the CIO on all labor matters. Again and again, since the war began, he has complimented the CIO upon its "magnificent record" at a time when many millions of war contracts were being held up by CIO strikes, and the CIO has exuded fulsome eulogies of Mr. Roosevelt's management both abroad and at home.

THE LINK between the CIO and Mr. Roosevelt is strong beyond dispute. It has existed for more than eight years, and has been mutually beneficial. Mrs. Roosevelt is a member of the CIO, and it was the CIO which Attorney General Biddle meant when he proclaimed the New Deal "a political party tied in with the labor movement under an able political leader." He certainly did not mean the AFL, which does not endorse candidates and contains many Republicans opposed to the fourth term. It is the CIO, with which the "tieup" was made before the 1936 election and, except in 1940, when Mr. Roosevelt broke personally with Mr. Roosevelt but failed to carry his following into the Willkie camp, there has been nothing to mar the complete political co-operation.

TO appreciate its true significance, the present situation must be viewed in the light of the above record. The facts about the 1944 campaign to re-elect Mr. Roosevelt are clear. The fourth-term movement was inaugurated by the CIO leaders and is being managed by them. The demand for his re-election has come from them, and their unions, claiming 5,000,000 members, have been unanimous in his endorsement. A fund, the lowest estimate of which is $750,000, has been raised for the pre-convention work and the active agency is known as the Committee On Political Action. It is headed by two former members of the Administration and close friends of the President—Sydney Hillman, the director, and C. A. Baldwin, deputy director.

IN EVERY part of the country this committee is active in Mr. Roosevelt's behalf. It is far bigger, much better financed, much better directed and with much better publicity facilities than the Democratic National Committee, which it seems to be completely overshadowing. True, it is saturated with Communism, filled with radicals and racketeers, but it is 100 per cent. for Mr. Roosevelt. In other words, if Mr. Roosevelt is re-elected he will owe it to the CIO. The war, the Negro vote, the Federal jobholders and other elements will contribute, but the CIO is his basic and indispensable asset. Without it he cannot win. If he wins, the CIO will have a right to claim it elected him. He is its candidate. He will, if elected, be its President, and its influence in the Administration—and the Democratic party—will be controlling. That is the logic of the situation and the only possible deduction from the record. The question is whether the American people—especially the American soldiers—are ready to turn their Government over to this particular labor union, through continuing in office a President under that kind of obligation and with that kind of hookup. As a result of this election either the CIO will have its heel heavily on our neck or we will have declared our independence.

IF GERMANS CHOOSE TO DEFEND ROME, ALLIES WILL BE FORCED TO USE FORCE TO "EJECT THEM," SAYS GEN. WILSON

Allies Will Use Military Measures, Says Gen'l Sir Henry Maitland — American Forces Batter Their Way Through Enemy "Defense in Depth."

NAPLES, June 3.—(INS)—If the Germans choose to defend Rome, the Allies will be forced to use force to "eject them," Gen. Sir Henry Maitland Wilson declared today in an official statement.

"If the Germans choose to defend Rome, the Allies will be obliged to take military measures to eject them," General Wilson said.

The German army will be ejected from Rome by "military measures," Gen. Sir Henry Maitland Wilson declared today, if the Nazi high command chooses to defend the city.

With Fifth Army spearheads already within 13 miles of Rome, the Supreme Allied Commander in the Mediterranean theater reaffirmed that every effort would be made by the Allies to safeguard both the civilian population and cultural works of the Eternal City.

NAPLES, June 3.—(INS)—American forces battered their way through enemy "defenses in depth" in their two-pronged drive on Rome today, occupying Monte Castellaccio and enlarging their penetration north of Velletri.

The Yanks, who had pushed spearheads to within 13 miles of Rome after their brilliant feat of capturing Velletri and Vianimonte, were encountering Nazi defenses of "considerable depth."

"Although Velletri and Vianimonte now have been taken by the Fifth Army after heavy fighting," Gen. Sir Henry Maitland Wilson's headquarters announced, "the enemy's defensive positions in this sector have not yet been broken."

Flies Length of the Pacific In 44 Hours

NEWTOWN, June 3.—A prominent Bucks Countian, Frazier Hunt, has returned to his Eagle Road home from Australia.

Mr. Hunt flew the length of the Pacific in 44 hours.

During the five months that Mr. Hunt has been in the South Pacific war zone, he saw the conquest of several "Jap" held islands in northern New Guinea and the great military bases in Australia.

In New Guinea Mr. Hunt met Naval Lt. (s.g.) John S. Wright, of Newtown, a member of the "Seabees," who has made an excellent record in construction of naval installations.

"My Fiddle" Is Subject
Before A Rotary Club

DOYLESTOWN, June 3.—Dr. Charles Haff, who, in addition to devoting much time to his hospital in Northampton, has made an intensive study of musical instruments, especially violins and violas, was the guest speaker at the meeting of the Rotary Club, here, this week. Introduced by Dr. George T. Hayman, Dr. Haff, who is sometimes known as the musical surgeon, gave a very interesting talk, the subject of which was "My Fiddle."

The guest speaker has devoted much time and effort and spent large sums in the collection of old violins and violas, and today is the owner of seven of these instruments, of which four are outstanding.

One of the violins Dr. Haff displayed, and which was used later in the evening during the presentation of a brief program, is what is known as the "Lafont Strad," and was made by Antonius Stradivarius at Cremona, Italy, in 1699.

This violin was named after Charles Philippe Lafont, a Frenchman, who was solo violinist for the Emperor of Russia, in 1808, and who played first violin for Louis XVIII in 1815. Lafont played this instrument in a competitive concert with his friend, Paganini, and was so gratified with his success that he used it during his lifetime, and had his name inscribed on it.

Another old instrument Dr. Haff brought with him and which also was used during the program was a viola made by Jacobus Stainer in 1652.

SPRING HAS COME TO "PENNSBURY"

PENNS MANOR, June 2.—Spring has come to "Pennsbury!"

And with the new surge of life in trees, shrubs and vines, comes renewed interest in the restored home of William Penn on the banks of the Delaware—for the year 1944 brings to the visitor a much clearer idea of how the country seat in the new world, begun for the founder and first governor of Pennsylvania in 1683, appeared to the person fortunate enough to be a guest there nearly 100 years before the Revolution.

Work of re-creation was begun in 1938, and now, six years later, the results of painstaking effort, years of research, and laborious tasks, some done over and over for the sake of perfection, are beginning to show.

Where six or seven years ago there was but a dilapidated farmhouse and some acres given over to a few crops, there stands today a manor house patterned in every possible detail like that which William Penn with such enthusiasm planned and had built.

And with the outcropping of leaves this spring the visitor reads

IMPROVING

ly recognizes the apricot, apple, the plum and the quince tree; the various herbs in the herb garden; and views with longing eye the sweet red strawberries. Asparagus, row after row now in its second year, was not cut this spring, but permitted to go to seed so that it might properly propagate in years to come.

Just as in Penna's time there is all manner of berry, flower and vegetable that grows readily in this section. Penn had described "Pennsbury" in his day as having fine tillable soil—and so it is today. Vegetable and flower plants are grown in sash beds, then set out at the proper time.

The 1944 visitor to "Pennsbury" finds things greatly changed in even one and two years, so nicely are the trees and shrubs progressing. Approaching the manor house over gravelled drives, between neatly-clipped plots of grass lined with a variety of young trees—the various types of fences, some painted white, and the neat little bake, brew, and smoke houses, are seen attractively grouped about the sturdy manor house which overlooks the river.

Although several of the rooms, including the "best parlor," the "lesser parlor," the dining room and the nursery are completely or partially furnished, the visitor's attention is naturally directed in the spring to the lawns and gardens.

A hemlock hedge, trimmed to a height of approximately 2½ feet, surrounds one grass plot at the rear of the property which the visitor first approaches. Large holly trees occupy the center section of the green.

The walks of one garden plot are bordered with gooseberry bushes, while nearby are raspberries and currants, strawberries, etc. Branches of dwarf types of Baldwin apple trees are trained up one of the fences. The herb garden is a delight to any home-maker with its thyme, chives, feverfew, sage, sweet lavender, sweet woodruff, rue and many others. Laid out in attractive patterns some of the small beds have borders of up-ended bricks.

A riot of color greets the eye in the flower garden to the front of the house, overlooking the river. Columbine in every imaginable shade, calendulas, myrtle, wood violets, white violets, pinks, snapdragons, irises, peonies, Johnny-jump-ups, pansies, yellow day lilies—all have their place. At intervals appear white benches, and here and there are boxwood bushes. A Philadelphia fence, painted white, surrounds the garden.

CPL. E. CONNOLLY IS A PRISONER OF WAR

Anxiety of 4 Months Relieved for Relatives; Was Reported Missing

IS IN "GOOD HEALTH"

Anxiety of four months was given relief for Bartley Connolly, 357 Pond street, on Thursday when he received word that his son, Cpl. Edmund Connolly, of the U. S. Rangers, who had been missing in action since January 30th, is a prisoner of war.

Cpl. Connolly, aged 29, had been in the army but eight months, when he was taken a prisoner by the Germans. He was one of those in the ill-fated group of about 900 who failed to return following an attack near Cisterna, Italy. Only 26 returned to their base. The remainder were trapped and either taken prisoners or killed.

Mr. Connolly's letters to his son were returned to him one by one, and on March 12th he received a telegram from the War Department, stating that Edmund was missing in action. From then until Thursday he knew nothing of the whereabouts of the young man, or if he was still alive. Then the Prisoner of War Division in Washington, D. C., forwarded Mr. Connolly a letter from his son.

The young man, who is a member of the Third Regiment of Rangers, advised his father that he is in the best of health.

Cpl. Connolly's letter follows:

"Feb. 26, 1944.

"Dear Dad:

"I guess this letter will be a surprise. It's just a few lines to let you know I'm alive and in the best of health. I'm getting three good meals a day besides a box from the Red Cross each week. I don't have to do any work, so all I do is eat and sleep. We have church here just like in the army.

HOME FROM ALASKA

Cpl. Tech. Edward H. Bergmann

Son of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Bergmann, Sr., Edgely, who is stationed with the U. S. Army along the Alaska Highway, is now at home on his first furlough. He is spending 29 days with parents, relatives and friends.

Cpl. Bergmann, who has been in the Army for 1½ years, found quite a change in temperature when he arrived in the States. He says that where he has been stationed the temperature during the winter went as low as 72 degrees below zero. Cpl. Bergmann found several changes in his home town. His parents had moved, and his brother is now in the U. S. Navy.

When Cpl. Bergmann's furlough terminates he will return to White Horse, Yukon Territory.

New Hope Residents Consider What Future Years
Will Bring

M A N Y PARTICIPATE

NEW HOPE, June 3.—Seventy-five persons met in the high school this week to take part in a panel discussion on community needs and how to meet them through group planning and cooperation. The value of this type of gathering was felt to be so definite that those present voted enthusiastically for a permanent Community Council and frequent Town Meetings of this type.

The meeting was arranged by the League of Women Voters as a part of their current poll on "Community Planning—Now!" Mrs. Charles B. Gary, of New Hope, chairman of the league, presided.

Russell V. Black, well-known authority on city planning, and a member of the local school board, was the first speaker on the panel. Mr. Black distinguished between long-range economic and social planning for the welfare of the people, which must stem from our national and state governments, and the more immediate and physical planning that can be done only by communities.

He said that New Hope and the surrounding areas should be able to make the adjustment from war to peace more easily than communities where there has been a boom in industry and population. But he said, we should begin to take up the slack immediately and start working together—not just to alleviate present problems, but toward assuring a better life for the entire community.

8-YEAR-OLD BOY DIES OF INJURIES SUFFERED WHEN HE RAN INTO SCHOOL BUS' PATH; VICTM IS RUSSELL GIRTON

Little School-Mates Witness the Tragedy at Cornwells Heights School—Death Occurs at Harriman Hospital Yesterday Afternoon — Funeral on Tuesday

Internal injuries suffered by a small boy as his school-mates stood by helpless when the child is said to have run into the path of a school bus, proved fatal yesterday afternoon for Russell Girtton, Jr., 8, Bensalem Township.

The child, son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Girtton, Washington Lane, Bensalem, was severely and painfully injured about the abdomen when it is believed his body became wedged between the wheel and either the bumper or fender of the bus late Thursday afternoon. Taken to the Harriman Hospital by a high school student, the lad died yesterday.

Dedicate Plaque; Honors Rohm & Haas Servicemen

A plaque honoring the 535 young men from Rohm & Haas Company now in the service of their country was dedicated yesterday afternoon at ceremonies held at the plant. The plaque which was placed temporarily on an easel, will be erected between the main office and the gate house. It is made entirely of plexiglas.

Guests at the ceremony were relatives of the servicemen from Rohm and Haas, and employees of the firm.

The program included: Invocation, the Rev. George E. Boswell, rector of St. James' P. E. Church; introductory remarks, E. Leslie Helwig, vice president of the firm; dedicatory address, Lt. Col. Don A. Starry, U. S. Army; unveiling of the plaque by Miss "Betty" Somers and William Mutch; taps sounded by Charles Brodie; benediction, the Rev. Fr. E. Paul Baird, of St. Mark's R. C. parish. Selections by the Rohm & Haas Co. band included "America" and the national anthem.

The two who unveiled the plaque are relatives of the two young men from the firm who have lost their lives in the service. Miss Somers' father and Mr. Mutch's son have gold stars beside their names.

FIGURES INDICATE MUCH WASTE PAPER HERE

U. S. Dept. of Commerce
Claims 160,797 Pounds
Are In Bristol

S O M E IN SUBURBS

There are 160,797 pounds of waste paper in Bristol households based on the average of 46.1 pounds per family as figured by the U. S. Department of Commerce. This was announced today by the Department which said the figures were obtained by an inventory survey of the waste paper lying idle in basements and attics in American households.

This study indicates that in April there were 859,999 tons of waste paper uncollected in this country. In Bristol households, based on the average of 46.1 pounds per family, the average household has 17.6 pounds of newspapers, 20.5 pounds of magazines, 5.2 pounds of brown kraft, and 2.8 pounds of waste basket paper on hand.

Surrounding farms have approximately 57.5 pounds of waste paper per family. This proves that although waste paper is number one critical war material there is plenty.

American Heavy Bombers Rock German Defenses

London—American heavy bombers and fighters rocked German anti-invasion defenses in the Pas De Calais and Boulogne areas of France twice today in smashing daylight onslaughts which followed heavy RAF night blows at railroad and military installations in that occupied land.

Fortresses and Liberators, escorted by fighters, hammered at what were described officially as "military targets" in both sectors of the coast early in the day. A few hours later an identical force struck the same areas again.

The RAF night forays were directed against northern France and the Paris area.

British Planes Attack 3 German Merchantmen

Aboard a British Aircraft Carrier in Northern Waters—Planes from a British naval task force gliding through Norwegian coastal waters dive bombed and strafed a convoy of three German merchantmen aggregating 29,000 tons, leaving all smoking and burning furiously, it was revealed today.

The aerial strike was made against a convoy protected by four flank ships heading down the Stadiand Peninsula midway between Trondheim and Bergen and presumably laden with a cargo of ores and fish oils from Narvik.

Just how the tragedy occurred is not known. School children, who were waiting with Russell to board the bus endeavored to tell authorities just what had taken place, some claiming the wheels passed over the youngster, while others incoherently stated they thought the small body was tossed about by the wheel. Authorities are of the opinion that the boy's body was wedged between the wheel and bumper.

Russell leaves in addition to his parents a younger sister and two, younger brothers, Harriet, Palmer and Patrick Girtton.

The version of the case as given by the small pupils who waited outside the Bensalem Township high school building to ride to their homes, is that Russell had been standing with the group as the bus turned from Bristol Pike into School Lane, which runs alongside the high school building. The Girtton lad is said to have quickly darted from the group into the path of the bus.

Pennsylvania State Police at South Langhorne barracks were notified, and C. A. Jones was assigned to the investigation. The driver of the bus, Joseph Reedman, Bensalem Township, is held to await action by the coroner's jury. Bucks County coroner, J. Altré, Continued on Page Four

Three young women and a young man were honored last evening by members of the Bristol Presbyterian Church choir at a dinner served at Bowen's Restaurant.

The members of the choir feted on this occasion are the Misses Patricia Henry, "Betty" Lynch and Olive Johnson, who graduate this spring from high school; and Donn Murdock, who will soon enter the armed forces.

(Maple Beach field)

TRENTON, June 3.—Because of the rain relief pitching of "Mike" DeRisi, the Fleetwings team was able to tie the Eastern Aircraft nine in a fast game on Wetzels field. Final score was 4-4.

DeRisi took up the mound burden with two outs in the second inning and four Aircraft runs already across. For the remainder of the game he shut out the airplane workers and allowed them but three hits during this stretch.

Hitting the ball hard and taking advantage of an Aircraft error, the Wingers pushed over four runs in the final frame to tie the score. Two singles, a double by Bloom, a walk, and an error, did the four-run trick.

DeRisi and Bloom led the Fleetwings batters with two out of four while Tony Nitti had the same average for the Eastern Aircraft team.

ROHM & HAAS OUT TO BREAK LOSING STREAK

The Rohm & Haas team will attempt to break its losing streak of nine straight games tomorrow afternoon when it meets the Case Packers on the Maple Beach diamond. Game will begin at 3:15 o'clock.

Manager Ken Munroe will most likely use Jesse Crossdale on the mound in an effort to halt the losing streak which has caused the chemical mixers to drop into last place. Either Houser or Vanzant will be his battery mate.

Ken Hill or Case will twirl for the Packers who are in fifth place and should the Rohm & Haas team win, they may have an opportunity to climb from the cellar within the next week.

has been enlarged." The Yanks occupied Monte Castellaccio.

In the southeast, Canadian and British forces of the Eighth Army continued to drive north and west on the heels of some eight virtually-trapped German divisions. Spearheads already are approaching Alatri, some four and one-half miles northwest of captured Veroli. In the Lanuvio area, where the Germans counter-attacked most strongly, our forces took more than 1,000 prisoners in a 24-hour period ending yesterday. This swelled to 14,000 the number of Germans taken captive by the Fifth Army since inauguration of the offensive.

The Campoleone sector was littered with enemy tanks, vehicles and a substantial amount of German equipment which had been destroyed or captured in good condition during recent operations.

German forces retreating northward from their mountain positions opposite the right sector of the Fifth Army are in imminent danger, having had the two most important exits closed to them.

Having seized Via Cassilina, the Americans are moving east down this highway while other Fifth Army troops are at Sgurgola, astride the road leading to this highway.

The movement from Valmontone is threatening the German troops facing the French elements of the Fifth Army who are moving northward to Colle Ferro.

Cutting the road at Sgurgola should seriously hamper the enemy withdrawal from the hills south of Highway Six (Via Cassilina).

The French, having occupied Montelanico, have pushed on toward the north.

Collections are increasing and April figures are most encouraging but demands for waste paper are increasing due to urgent war needs. Readers are urged to bundle up their idle paper and send it to war at once.

A golden anniversary will be observed in St. Michael's Lutheran Church, Perkasie, on Sunday morning, when Irene Cressman, veteran organist of the church, is to be honored by members of the congregation at Sellersville.

Miss Cressman, now 82, played the organ, piano and pipe organ at St. Michael's Church for half a century. Until a mishap caused her to fracture a wrist recently, she had continued her duties. After that stiffness in her wrist made it impractical for Miss Cressman to resume playing, but her interest in local affairs continues unabated.

Commencement exercises were held Monday afternoon for the 8th grade pupils of the Washington Crossing school.

The exercises included: Invocation, Rev. F. Lewis Walley; address of welcome, Jean Anne Heritage; school chorus, selections; class history, Patricia Strange; piano solo, Marjorie Whitesell; boys' chorus; piano solo, Jean Anne Heritage; "Influence in Music, in the History of Our Country," Dorothy Hoagland; play, "Psalms of America," by the class; address, Rev. F. L. Walley; presentation of diplomas, by teacher, Mrs. Bertha Heritage. The graduates: Jean Anne Heritage, Dorothy Ruth Hoagland, Patricia Ann Strange, Marjorie O. Whitesell, Robert W. Church and Leiby Whitesell.

Spring Has Come To "Pennsbury"

er level and looking back, one has a good view of the brick wall which separates the flower garden from the lower grounds. Tulip poplars line the walk from the garden stairs to the great stairs at the water's edge. It was the "great stairs" that Penn frequently mentioned in his correspondence while in the old country.

The young Newton apple trees are sturdy in appearance and are the pride of those having the care of the orchard. These trees, grown from seeds of the tree under which Isaac Newton is reputed to have sat when he discovered the principle of gravity, are doing well. Penn frequently spoke of the vineyard, and this too has again become a reality. In fact the 40 acres of the restored property has blossomed once again.

There are many plans for the future, even though the only building done during the war period was that which fulfilled contracts let before Pearl Harbor. In post-war years an anti-erosion program will prevent soil from being gradually taken over by the Delaware's waters, it is hoped. There are yet to be built a tool house, wood shed, chicken house, and box-stall for the brood mare. The barn-yard too is incomplete.

Should Penn be able to return in spirit to this manor house which was his pride and joy, his eye would scan broad acres that are fast becoming what they were 260 years ago. He would find some of the pieces of furniture now housed there reminiscent of the period, including the items in the "best parlor" from the William Randolph Hearst collection. He would admire the splendid lines of the walnut chaise longue in the "lesser parlor," which piece came from an old castle in England. He would likewise be pleased with the walnut Bible stand in the hall which bears the date 1679. The dining-room and nursery furniture he would find to be that of his time. And he would no doubt spend some time before the reproduction of a map of the "Improved part of the Province of Pennsylvania in America, begun by William Penn, Proprietary and Governor thereof, 1681," which hangs in the great hall. He would admire the view from his bed-room window, with its southern and eastern exposures.

And what is more he would find hams and bacon suspended in the smokehouse, with a pile of hickory wood nearby for future "smokings." The founder of Pennsylvania would no doubt feel the rich smoothness of the two huge copper kettles in the big wash room, and would show keen interest in the fomenting tanks of wood in the brew house. He would be interested to know that archaeologists found evidence of hoops and remains of rotted wood on the site of the old manor house on which to base their dimensions for the beer tank which is inserted six feet in the floor of the brew room. Other large vats he would find nearby. His attention would also be called to the dryer in an adjoining room where a large oven heats air which makes its way through holes in the floor above to dry the hops and grains.

Reminders of those early days are also there in original pieces. For in the office, encased in glass, are roofing leads, glazed fireplace tile, roofing tile, window fasteners, flint-locks, and arrow heads excavated on the place. A portion of the original foundation is to be seen in the basement. This re-pointed brick section gives fine example of the manner in which brick was customarily laid in that early day, with the "head" and "stretcher" rows alternating.

To "Pennsbury," where visitors were never lacking in Penn's day, there come from many states today men and women from all walks of life. And with the conclusion of the global conflict and the ending of gasoline rationing, it is predicted that guests by the thousands will make their way thither—not by barge nor by carriage as in the late 17th century—but by the motor car which Penn never knew.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS By FRANK R. KENT

ception in 1935 Mr. Roosevelt and the CIO have consistently operated as a political unit. From the sit-down strikes of his first Administration on up to the recent national service proposal which, though he recommended it on the insistence of his military heads, he has allowed to languish following CIO opposition, there has been no public question upon which they have been divided. The CIO supports the President on every domestic policy; the President supports the CIO on all labor matters. Again and again, since the war began, he has complimented the CIO upon its "magnificent record" at a time when many millions of war contracts were being held up by CIO strikes, and the CIO has exuded fulsome eulogies of Mr. Roosevelt's management both abroad and at home.

THE LINK between the CIO and Mr. Roosevelt is strong beyond dispute. It has existed for more than eight years, and has been mutually beneficial. Mrs. Roosevelt is a member of the CIO, and it was the CIO which Attorney General Biddle meant when he proclaimed the New Deal "a political party tied in with the labor movement under an able political leader." He certainly did not mean the AFL, which does not endorse candidates and contains many Republicans opposed to the fourth term. It is the CIO, with which the "tieup" was made before the 1936 election and, except in 1940, when Mr. Lewis broke personally with Mr. Roosevelt but failed to carry his following into the Willkie camp, there has been nothing to mar the complete political co-operation.

TO appreciate its true significance, the present situation must be viewed in the light of the above record. The facts about the 1944 campaign to re-elect Mr. Roosevelt are clear. The fourth-term movement was inaugurated by the CIO leaders and is being managed by them. The demand for his re-election has come from them, and their unions, claiming 5,000,000 members, have been unanimous in his endorsement. A fund, the lowest estimate of which is $750,000, has been raised for the pre-convention work and the active agency is known as the Committee On Political Action. It is headed by two former members of the Administration and close friends of the President—Sydney Hillman, the director, and C. A. Baldwin, deputy director.

IN EVERY part of the country this committee is active in Mr. Roosevelt's behalf. It is far bigger, much better financed, much better directed and with much better publicity facilities than the Democratic National Committee, which it seems to be completely overshadowing. True, it is saturated with Communism, filled with radicals and racketeers, but it is 100 per cent for Mr. Roosevelt. In other words, if Mr. Roosevelt is re-elected he will owe it to the CIO. The war, the Negro vote, the Federal jobholders and other elements will contribute, but the CIO is his basic and indispensable asset. Without it he cannot win. If he wins, the CIO will have a right to claim it elected him. He is its candidate. He will, if elected, be its President, and its influence in the Administration—and the Democratic party—will be controlling. That is the logic of the situation and the only possible deduction from the record. The question is whether the American people—especially the American soldiers—are ready to turn their Government over to this particular labor union, through continuing in office a President under that kind of obligation and with that kind of hookup. As a result of this election either the CIO will have its heel heavily on our neck or we will have declared our independence.

WAR WORKERS—This is no time to let up
As the fighting moves toward a show-down, it is more important than ever before that those in war work stay at their posts until victory is won. Our men need the weapons that we make in this great war production area. And as the offensive gains in strength, they'll need more of them. Sticking to war work is the best way you can help them to win final victory.
